Fast Facts about the City of Five Flags

- Pensacola boasts 52 miles of Gulf waters and protected, pristine shoreline.
- The Seville Historic District is one of the oldest and most intact in all of Florida, its architecture reflecting modest structures perfectly suited to the climate. Within this small neighborhood is Old Christ Church, Florida's oldest church (1832), and St. Michael's Cemetery, deeded to Pensacola by the King of Spain in 1822.
- The Wall South at Veterans Memorial Park on Bayfront Parkway is a one-half scale replica of the design in Washington, D.C.
- Pensacola was once considered to become the capital city of Florida. After a compromise between Pensacola and St. Augustine, Tallahassee became the capital of Florida.
- Pensacola's white sandy beaches consist mainly of pure quartz. Due to the fact that almost all of the sand grains are of the same size and composition, their rubbing together when you walk over them causes a squeaking sound.
